CONFERENCE OVERVIEW

The School Health Interdisciplinary Program (SHIP) is a multifaceted approach to continuing education. This regional conference will provide intensive training on all of the different components of comprehensive school health, including school health services, health education, nutrition, physical education, family and community involvement, staff wellness, school environment (emotional and environmental) and mental health. SHIP will provide two days of intensive training this summer, targeting school-based and school related staff to provide for continuing education and development. SHIP is co-sponsored by the Center for School Mental Health, University of Maryland School of Medicine, the Maryland Department of Health, the Maryland State Department of Education, the Department of Juvenile Services, and the Department of Human Services, Social Services Administration.

SHIP offers sessions with topics of interest to members of the pupil services team, school nurses, physicians, psychologists, social workers, pupil personnel workers, nutritionists, counselors, health educators, health practitioners, school educators, and other team members to implement effective school health services and mental health programs. What makes this institute unique is its focus on intensive professional development on topics vital to school health professionals, including social determinants of a thriving student, transitioning at risk students, opioid crisis in schools, parent engagement, trauma informed care, and more hot topics of school health.
